

SMS messaging

With almost 90% of young people using mobile phones, and the cost of text services decreasing, text messaging has become the way to communicate information quickly and efficiently.

With Fronter SMS messaging, students, teachers, staff and parents can take advantage of a direct messaging service that allows everybody to stay up to date and informed about important school activities.

With SMS messaging:

Teachers – Inform students and staff of absence, class time and venue changes, or send reminders about upcoming events and important notices.

Students – Receive up to date information on class times and schedules.

Parents – Receive reminders and notices of activities at the school and upcoming events or information meetings.

How the SMS messaging works

Account administration – Fronter administrators have direct control over who has access to send SMS and to whom they are able to send.

Quota – The school can purchase a 'Pay-as-you-go/cash card,' representing a fixed number of text messages.

Group or individuals – The text messages can be sent individually or by groups e.g. Jane Smith, English year 1, Parents year 2, and is sent directly from Fronter.

Status report – The SMS messaging tool will enable full reporting of text messages sent and received, as well as an SMS log for all SMS accounts visible to the Fronter administrator.
